Chris Haines

Chris is a full time trainer and coach running in service training sessions at a national level. He works closely with many schools and has a reputation for providing solutions that work. He is an expert on learning, assessment, mentoring, guidance systems and the skills needed for effective leadership. His work is highly valued and he has run training sessions for schools on the role of the team leader, skills of the tutor, mentoring and coaching.

The Effective Teaching and Learning Network

The Network supports teachers by providing training for classroom, middle and senior leaders. Established 15 years ago it has a reputation for providing high quality, up to date training in small groups. The training is interactive and every effort is made to meet your specific needs on the day. The small groups allow networking and interaction.

New courses include 'The Classroom Role of the Teacher Assistant', and 'How to Work with Students with Complex Learning Difficulties'. Find out more by phone, e mail, or on the website.
